The UELMA Board is excited for the upcoming 2019 annual UELMA conference on Friday, March 8, 2019 at the Utah Cultural Celebration Center in West Valley City. This year’s theme is based on the six “Shared Foundations” that anchor the AASL standards. Our conference presentations have been organized with these Shared foundations in mind. You will be able to find breakout sessions as well as Idea Lab presentations which correlate to the key entry points of the standards: Inquire, Include, Collaborate, Curate, Explore and Engage. We are confident there will be something to learn for everyone in attendance.

UELMA is thrilled to have a New York Times bestselling author, Laurie Halse Anderson, as our keynote speaker. Her work has earned numerous ALA and state awards as well as two of her books, Chains and Speak, were finalists for the National Book Award. Her newest book, SHOUT, is scheduled to be released March 12. In addition to our fabulous keynote we have invited local Utah talents; middle grade author Matt J. Kirby and illustrator Will Terry. Once again the Utah State Library has given their support to UELMA to bring such great authors to our conference. We are forever grateful for their continued support.

I would like to thank everyone who has submitted presentation proposals for the conference, you are at the heart of why we have the annual conference and we could not pull it off without you! New this year is our first platinum sponsor, Follett, and our silver sponsor, Perma-Bound Books. In addition, we are so appreciative of all the vendors willing to help contribute books for our service project, the Dixie Montessori Academy charter school library in Washington, UT. We truly appreciate your strong support of school libraries. The conference committee chair, Selena Campbell, and her team have done an amazing amount of work to make it all happen. Thank you Selena Campbell, Davina Sauthoff, Ann Riding, Mariah Gerlach, David Wirth, Cindy Mitchell and all the others who have been preparing behind the scenes for months and will continue to do so until March 8th. If you haven’t already, make sure you register for the conference. It is sure to be outstanding!

As my term as president nears its end, I feel fortunate to have had the opportunity to represent UELMA and its membership. It has been a profound and enlightening learning experience which has made me so appreciative of all of the dedication and volunteer work which UELMA members continue to contribute to the organization and its continued success.

I look forward to seeing you all next month!

Service Project

Let’s Build a Library!

Dixie Montessori Academy is a K-7 Charter School in Southwest Utah. They have been in operation for over six years without a library! They are also a “Turnaround School”, which means they are currently one of the most underperforming schools in Utah.

With a new director, Julie Atwood, they are turning that around. Director Atwood has created a school improvement plan and part of that was building a library in the school. Kathy Thiriot was chosen to be the librarian and rose to the occasion! She has been purchasing books with a very tight budget, seeking donations, and working to make the library the heart of the school.

This library is in need of high quality books in all areas. In order to help the library save funds, the team at Southwest Educational Development Center have set up a KOHA library to check out books. The team recently spent a day at the school entering all the current books, many of which are gently used but very much appreciated.

While we were there, many students poked their head in and asked when they could check out books!

There will be opportunities to donate books at the conference, feel free to bring a book, especially non-fiction, it would be most appreciated!

Platinum and Silver Sponsors

We would like to give special thanks to Follett for being a Platinum Sponsor– contact David Brown at dbrown@follett.com. Make sure to stop by their table at the conference!

Also thanks to Perma-Bound Books for being a Silver Sponsor– contact David Wirth at davidwirth@perma-bound.com. Make sure to stop by their table at the conference!
Conference Vendors

Librarians, please register for this year’s conference, Shared Foundations, with keynote speaker Laurie Halse Anderson. There are several changes to this year’s conference for vendors. Due to feedback from past conferences, we will be moving the vendors up to the main level for the conference. This will allow attendees more space to meet with vendors and create a better flow to the vendor booth area. Make sure to visit with all the vendors to learn more of what they have to offer your libraries!

In addition, the UELMA board has voted to approve a new vendor sponsorship policy. The board recognizes the opportunity to further partner with vendors to provide valuable financial support while allowing the vendors to educate attendees on the products and services that can help support the library’s mission.

This year for the UELMA Conference service project, the vendors decided to donate 100 books to Dixie Montessori Academy. This is a charter school library in Washington, UT. The librarian there created a list which will be divided among vendor sponsors to augment their library with the best in new titles.

I am looking forward to seeing everyone next month at the conference. Be well!

Library Research

Moving our Field Forward

UELMA is cooperating with key school library researchers, Keith Curry Lance and Debra Kachel, in their quest for data about school libraries. Keith and Debra are working closely with the Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS) to fund an upcoming study on the loss, or evolving position, of the school librarian. Their primary research question is “if school librarianship is evolving and not just disappearing, to what extent is that happening, how and where, and what are the prevailing directions in which the evolution of the job is moving?”

At this time, Keith and Debra have endorsements from over two dozen states to participate in their research- now including Utah. Keith said, “we are very excited that UELMA is supporting our efforts.” To read more about their research endeavors, check out the School Library Journal article “School Librarian, Where Art Thou?” UELMA will keep our membership updated on the role we can all play in building a body of meaningful data for continued advocacy for strong school libraries.
Library Aide Basics Program

Join our collaborative community of librarians and learn!

Join us in the Library Aide Basics class created by UELMA Board Member Caitlin Gerrity and her staff at Southern Utah University with support from USBE and an LSTA Grant.

“Library Aide Basics (LAB) is a free program designed to provide self-paced training to library media aides or paraprofessionals serving elementary school students. Our goal is to assist aides in learning basic skills and practices that can improve their library services. Each of the seven learning modules includes up-to-date instruction based on proven best practices, current research, and the new standards recently released by the American Association of School Libraries (AASL) in 2018.”

UELMA Show and Tell

You know that UELMA post-conference feeling, when your batteries are recharged, you’re brimming with new ideas from other librarians, and just can’t wait to implement them in your own space?

Wouldn’t it be nice if you could have that little kick start of creativity every day? How would you like to take a virtual field trip to libraries across the state, so you could see the innovative and creative things your fellow librarians are doing?

It’s possible! Just follow the hashtag #UELMAshowandtell to see a variety of ideas from our fantastic UELMA members!

This will only work if you are willing to share the great things happening in your library space. Did you just create a display that you’re really proud of? Did your last book club meeting knock it out of the park? Do you have an innovative idea for collaborating with your faculty? Share it on Instagram or Twitter with our hashtag so your fellow librarians can find it!

We’ll also keep an eye out and repost things on our UELMA Instagram, so if you don’t already follow us, please do so @uelma_librarians.

To give you an idea of where to start, we’ll be choosing a theme for each month. This month’s theme is displays. It could be book genres, how you show what your teachers are reading to create a reading community, or anything you do to liven up your space! So snap a quick picture of something in your library right now, and share it with our hashtag. Let’s get this virtual show and tell started!

UELMA Membership

UELMA is only as strong as its members, and we want all Utah school libraries to be involved. Please help us help you. If you know of anyone affiliated with Utah’s school libraries who would benefit from UELMA, please send us their name, school, and contact information.

We especially need contact information for librarians serving in the charter schools. We will reach out to them and let them know how UELMA can benefit them and their libraries. Please send this information to our board member Emilee McCoy at emccoy@paradigmhigh.org.

Utah Library Media Supervisors

Many Utah school library employees are not aware of a group that is working to benefit our school libraries. Utah Library Media Supervisors (ULMS) is largely comprised of district library supervisors who meet regularly to receive training and discuss topics that help their public school libraries.

Most recently, ULMS authored and sponsored the “Utah Effective Teaching Standards and Continuum of Practice for Library Media Teachers” document that is accessible through the UELMA website. This document is currently being vetted through districts in the state and is being reviewed and considered for adoption by USBE. The existing USBE classroom teacher evaluation rubric is problematic for teacher librarians since the two teacher groups’ duties differ dramatically. The continuum follows the organization and categories outlined in the USBE classroom teacher evaluation rubric, but demonstrates how the state teaching standards are utilized within teacher librarian job descriptions and duties.

ULMS provides a community for the supervisors that provides interaction and training to help them be more effective leaders in their districts. If your district is not currently represented or you would like more information about ULMS, please contact UELMA Board member and ULMS President Melia Fidel at mfidel@murrayschools.org.
